DOUGLAS VERMEEREN
MAKING WAVES ON THE INDIE SCENE

Over the last few years it seems like Douglas Vermeeren is appearing everywhere. For 2023, the talented actor has been in scores of independent films and mainstream media and shows no signs of slowing down in 2024. This year he has portrayed a police officer in charge of the horrific crime scenes in The Lurker by Adam Jack. The Lurker has been screening internationally since its release earlier this year and has won over sixty awards around the globe.

From there, Vermeeren was a best supporting actor award for his role as the deranged building manager in the horror anthology Torment. The film was directed by Ben Wadick and Sean Molin. Torment has been winning awards all around the world beginning with the Best Picture at the LA Film Festival, the LA Horror & Crime festival, The Cult Movie International Festival and several others. This year will also see the release of the science fiction epic The Awakening by Aneirin Glantaf. In The Awakening, Douglas Vermeeren is the villainous Alexander, selling his soul to the devil for immortality and magical powers. His objective is to capture several magical relics that will give him power over the last surviving colonies on Earth.

During the last year Douglas has also done several films abroad. The most well known were perhaps his work with UK director Chris Sanders. Vermeeren played the lead in the recently completed film Big Cars. In the film Vermeeren portrayed Stan Lorne, a movie producer fixated on capturing the elusive big cats that folklore suggests roam the UK country side. It's an intriguing and horrific found footage tale that goes very wrong.

The Highgate Vampire was also completed earlier this year. Douglas Vermeeren was able to work in a few days for a small cameo in the film as Tobias. Not much has been said about this film but should be quite interesting when released. The Highgate Vampire is apparently a real legend about a true-to-life Vampire that has been seen shrouded in the nighttime shadows in the cemeteries near Highgate.

Later this year, Sanders and Vermeeren will team up again for a UK classic gangster film titled, "Clean Right Hook."

It seems like the most dominant genre for Vermeeren this last year has been horror and thriller. Vermeeren is the news reporter Derry Webster in the horror film The Unseen. Just the title alone is enough to get fans of this genre feeling uneasy. This film by director Steve Medoff and trailers are already online featuring Vermeeren as the news reporter talking about the frightening disappearance of a young woman in the local area. One of the more interesting projects for Vermeeren this year was portraying a retiring mafia don in the student film The Legacy directed by Irvin Ali. When asked about why he chose to participate in this ultra low budget feature

Vermeeren answered, "The character and idea of the film was really interesting. It entailed around the passing of the legacy in an organized crime family, from father to son. And I love to help student filmmakers as they begin their career. They love the art of moviemaking as much as I do. And student films can be one of the purest forms of filmmaking. And I am excited to support this kind of filmmaking."

One of the more memorable projects showcased Douglas Vermeeren as the lead FBI agent in the true crime docuseries Mafia Spies directed by Tom Donahue appearing later this year on Paramount plus. This project featured Nick Amoruso -ta from the hit series The Sopranos. Most likely the most memorable film that Vermeeren participated in this last year may be one of the roles that he will be known for a long time going forward. In his second collaboration with director and writer Adam Jack Vermeeren is the stoic villain Billy Lachance in the upcoming film Jackknife. Jackknife will be released at the TIFF Lightbox Theater on March 3, 2024 and then on to the film festival circuit globally. Jackknife will definitely be the film to watch on the film festival circuit with high expectations that it will sweep the festival awards. Adam Jack's last film The Lurker scooped up more than 60 international awards and it is anticipated that Jackknife may do even better.

Vermeeren has already won a best actor award for his portrayal of Billy Lachance. The film centers around two black teenagers who have a white mother. The film explores several of the racial issues and difficulties faced by mix race families and stereotypes that often live blacks in a predominantly white environment.

The drama of the film plays as the teens are mistakenly suspected of serious crimes in their area which include the robbing of a convenience store and murder of the clerk. To protect themselves the teens go on the run and become the object of a search by the police, a concerned mother, a neighbour search effort and Bill -y Lachance bent on revenge for the death of his brother.

It is expected that Douglas Vermeeren will receive several nominations for his eerie and serpent-like portrayal of Lachance. The film was shot on the outskirts of Toronto, Canada earlier this year. The advance screenings has audiences suggesting that this could be the most intriguing independent film of the year.

There was another interesting shift in performances for Douglas Vermeeren this year as he voiced the character Rufus Gideon Bennett on the upcoming animated film Monster Hunters Inc. Monster Hunters Inc. is based on the comic books in the same name. It's a steampunk adventure that takes place in Victorian England in that late 1800's. The fictionalized story claims to be the beginning of the steampunk movement as we know it. Essentially the story follows a band of misfit monster hunters with a mission to protect the world from reaperatural monsters that are seeking world domination. It's a fun animated project but definitely not for the faint of heart. The project features a very strong, graphic kind of violence and is not for youngsters. It has been compared to violence e Kill Bill style bloodbath in cartoon style Monster Hunters Inc. isn't the only project that Douglas Vermeeren has been involved with over the last while. Douglas Vermeeren teamed up with director and writer Daniel Turner to portray Sheriff Rudy Bellamy in the upcoming slasher film, Fresh Meat. As this article comes out Turner's last horror feature film, Hate for Blood is screening across North America and is rated as the top movie on Scary.

Box with 100% rating on Rotten Tomatoes. Douglas Vermeeren's character Sheriff Rudy Bellamy is tasked with warning a group of internet influencers to stay out of an abandoned prison. Naturally they ignore the warnings of local law enforcement and enter the prison anyways. It isn't long until they discover the secrets of why the prison has been locked up, condemned and abandoned. Sheriff Bellamy (Vermeeren) returns to hopefully rescue these disobedient influencers, but will he be too late?
